HOPE OF THE WORLD

America Holds Master Key to Solution of Evils Which Beset Europe.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—By remaining out of the league of nations, the United States now holds the balance between the forces of good and evil among the governments of the world. America's attitude gives the only hope for peace in war-torn Europe. In this hour its tangled up premises and rulers turn to the only foot-loose nation among the great powers for disinterested advice and possible assistance on the side of right. Not bound by any entanglements and free to act without foreign guidance, the United States government already is exerting a pronounced and beneficial influence on the chaotic situation. Its stand is directly opposite to that taken by its suggested controlling partner in the league of nations—Great Britain. It will sanction no partition of Russian territory nor endorse the policy of holding the Russian people responsible for the acts of the bolshevik government. Such was the action of England under the league of nations, from which the senate kept the United States free. To the policy of Great Britain facilitated by the league is clearly due the determination of the Russians even under the banner of Lenin to fight for their native soil which that policy has taken from them in the name of universal peace. No recognition has been extended by America to the newly formed republics of Georgia, Es-thonia, Latvia, Azerbaijan, and Armenia which were formed under the league by taking territory within the borders of Russia. This country, being free to act, need not recognize Lenin or the soviet form of government and it can recognize that the allies were unjust in their treatment of Russia. As a member of the league of nations it would have no such independence of action, but he would be bound to uphold the spoiling of an old and ever friendly power.

In paper every member of the league files to defend Poland's integrity in pursuance of Article X. England refuse. France won't do it. The Russians even under a hated banner spring to attack Poland to preserve their own integrity. Thus is demonstrated that while all the republican members opposing the league foretell a nation will not fight unless their own national spirit is aroused—and the chief purpose of the league under Article V falls to the ground.

STABBED IN FIST FIGHT

Moore Pleads Not Guilty to Assault on Kill Filed by W. M. Huff.
C. W. Moore, charged with assault with intent to kill, entered a plea of not guilty at his arraignment yesterday before Justice H. C. Maxey and was held under bond of $500 for preliminary hearing next Friday. The charge filed by W. M. Huff, 197 South Broadway avenue, grew out of a fight near the People Ice plant Friday afternoon.

Huff claims that during the fight Moore drew a pocket knife and cut the complainant several times before interference of other parties terminated the hostilities.

BUNCOMBE IN BROKEN DOSES

European Situation Used for Home Partisan Effect.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The publication of the presidential note regarding the Polish situation gives color to the rumor which has been prevalent in Washington for some weeks that the administration would soon make political capital out of the bolshevik advance which might create a favorable reaction to Wilsonism. Note writing for domestic consumption in a favorite Wilson device to influence elections, although it has been in absence for some time owing to what may have been something like pen paralysis of the dearer foe of the enemy.

It is believed by many in Washington that the note regarding Poland is but the first of a number which will be followed by Mr. Wilson between now and voting day. In fact, the Wilson swing song is to be broken up into suites, expiring at High C and high noon on March 4, 1921. According to further rumor current at the capital a sharp note may soon go to Japan ordering that nation to haul in its horns with respect to further encroachments in Russian territory. This ought to win a smile of approval from voters in the Pacific coast states, where dissatisfaction with the democratic administration is rife and the temper toward Japan is somewhat crochety for good and sufficient reason.

That a correspondence may soon take place between the white house and Great Britain, marked by acrimony, and growing out of an expected rebuke to be administered that country's confidently predicted, an dith may be designed to win applause of Americans of Irish blood who have been alienated from the democratic party by Article 19 of the league covenant. An effort may be made to put Great Britain in the light of one seeking to clip the Russian bear by dividing its territory, and it is to be admitted that the task will not be a difficult one. France is also expected to come in for a certain lecture of pedagogical character as to how she should conduct her foreign relations. And, of course, something must be done to sweeten the Italian vote.

It seems that the attitude which the administration takes is that the bolshevik movement would have expired of inanition had it not been for foreign aggressions which united the Russians in a national movement to oust the invaders from their soil. The fact that the Lenin-Trotsky government completely annihilated an army of 2,000,000 men under Kolchak and Denikin will be ignored in this correspondence. The fact that the small countries comprising the former Baltic provinces of Russia were induced to split off from czaristic and bolshevik Russia and set up housekeeping for themselves by Wilson's demand for the self-determination of small nations will be forgotten. Under the Wilson decrees those small nations are to be returned to Russia. "People and provinces are not to be bartered about from sovereignty to sovereignty as if they were mere chattels and pawns in the game," announced the president in his message to congress of February 11, 1918. "All well defined national aspirations shall be accorded the utmost satisfaction that can be accorded them without introducing now or perpetuating old elements of discord that would be likely in time to break the peace of Europe and consequently of the world," he continued. And again, "This war had its roots in the disregard of the rights of small nations and of nationalities which lacked the union and the force to make good their claims to determine their own allegiances and their own forms of political life." All that is in the discard as the administration moves desperately to stem the tide of public feeling now running against it, and hopes in a storm of European recrimination to rally the voters to the Wilson-Cox standard. That the administration will stoop to these methods in best evidence by the refusal during 1916 to make any preparation for war lest the "he kept us out of war" campaign should be jeopardized.
